

Make one of your resolutions to improve your business!

This newsletter is a little late for the new year. I hope everyone had a great holiday and happy new year!

How many of you are still sticking to those new years resolutions? Yes, it's still early enough to break them. I don't really bother with them myself anymore. I can always go with the usual; get into shape, stop procrastinating, be more positive . . . but I usually end up making a quitter out of myself. So, I don't even worry about it.

Kudos to you if you are following through with your resolutions, best of luck to you. I'd love some advice on how to follow through. In the spirit of the new year, we'll be talking about new ways to make your business environment more functional.

Call me and I will share the specials we have and some suggestions on how you can add a few new pieces of office furniture and utilize your current furniture to create a new configuration for a more functional work environment.

If your business appears upscale and progressive during these economic times, customers will have greater confidence in your business. You will be more successful in the long haul.
